

The 20th International Symposium on
Recent Advances in Drug Delivery Systems
February 23-26, 2027 | University of Utah

Sponsor Opportunities

The 20th International Symposium on Recent Advances in Drug Delivery Systems (RADDs) convenes leading multidisciplinary researchers in pharmaceuticals, materials science, biology, and medicine. For more than four decades RADDs has served as a premier forum for the latest advances in drug delivery, controlled release, and molecular pharmaceuticals.

The 2027 program will feature expert speakers recommended by 36 international advisory board members from the US and around the globe, with topics including immunotherapy, artificial intelligence, tumor targeting, gene therapy, theranostics and advanced drug delivery systems.

Target Audience: RADDs is designed for scientists in the pharmaceutical, biotechnology, and biomedical industries, as well as academic researchers, trainees, and professionals from government agencies such as the USDA and NIH.

Organizing Committee at the University of Utah Molecular Pharmaceutics Department:

Special Supporter – Any level

Special supporters are the backbone of the RADDs Symposium. Our community is spread around the world and not everyone is able to attend in person or sponsor through a company. The Special Supporter option is the perfect way to support the Symposium at whatever level is meaningful to you. Special Supporters will be recognized on the event website, signage and printed materials.

Add-On: Award Sponsor – $500+

Award sponsorships support a named monetary 'Best Poster' award given to trainees and postdocs selected by an independent judging panel. Award sponsors will be recognized on the event website and printed materials.
